

It's been months and months since I was actively developing this project. I just tried to get it running on localhost but I ran into an issue the Google OAuth. Rather than spend time getting it working I'm just going to keep making new projects in React and NodeJs, including Google OAuth for this site which is coming soon if it's not implemented yet!

I found some old screenshots that I had shared with a friend on facebook and this was the page I had to display and track overall portfolio value.

Here is the page I used to cycle through the different assets to view their financial chart. The chart library is 'react-stockcharts' and is based off of d3 I believe.
